

The Indiana Telephone Privacy law has been a brilliant example of government making a positive difference. My family have gone from being bothered twice during dinner, once during evening playtime, and once waking up kids that we're trying to get to sleep TO maybe one call a week from a charity. This has improved our family time together.

Any interference with Indiana's law would be an affront to the citizens and elected representatives of Indiana which have made a very positive change.

Instead of wasting time interfering with Indiana's law, I would appreciate some attention to reducing the amount of spam I'm subjected to on the internet. Bulk e-mail and entry of private e-mail addresses into spammer's hands without permission of the owner needs to be stopped.
